

ACV Ab 6 Properties subject to Guillaume de Namur and his wife Catherine de Savoie in the District of Moudon, 1358-1361

Abstracts prepared by John W. McCoy (RealMac@aol.com) © 2022.

While this is clearly a manuscript from the 14th Century, comprising 60 folios, the date is in question. In some places, and notably for the first folio, the ink has worn away in several lines at the tops of the vellum pages, and this has obscured the date in the introductory paragraph.

What remains of the first phrase is, “In nomine domino Amen, Anno eiusdem... m^o ? ccc^o ? quinquaginta ? (or possibly quadraginta) ... dominica indicione xii per presentem scrip...” The name of the commissarius is Johannes Guillyent de Wachio ? , clericus, Gebennensis diocesis. The terrier is compiled for Dominus Guiliermus Namurcensis, and for Katerina de Sabaudia his consort. The first group of reconnaissances is “apud Meldunum in Quarrerria Crucis a parte Broye”, and the text for that section begins, “Anno et indicione quibus supra die xii mensis decembris, apud Meldunum in domo que quondam fuit Martini de Rasia”.

Here and there in the text, there are several places where a date was intended, but in most of them, the year, month, and day have been left blank. At least one actually says 1358, and there is one mention of a procuracio (power of attorney) dated in 1359. There is also the date “Anno domini m^o ccc^o lxxprimo”, 1361, on the verso of fol. 24, both sides of which are otherwise blank – in other words, there is no way to be sure that fol. 24, or even this date, have anything to do with the content of the volume, as the date could have been added at any point before or after the volume was assembled, or might even have been already written on an otherwise blank sheet that was used to separate the sections of the text when the volume was assembled.

Pasted onto the first page, there is a much later label, “Grosse du commissaire Jean Vuillyent riere tout le District de Moudon, En faveur du Sérénissime Prince Guillaume Comte de Namur Seigneur de Vaud, et de la Sérénissime Princesse Catherine de Savoye sa femme et les leurs &c., De l’an 1340 &c.” In pencil, this label has been amended twice, first (ordinary pencil ?) indicating that the first letter of the surname of the commissaire should be G, and (blue pencil) that the date should be 1358-1361.

Additional confusion is provided by the “indiction” in the introductory paragraph, which we first read as vii. By the usual calendars, the only years with indiction vii around this period should be 1354 and 1369. On closer inspection, and with the realization that the word beneath the indiction number on the next line was intervallis (“quod annis, intervallis, indictionibus, diebus, et locis infrascriptis necnon coram me Johanne Guillyent de Wachio ? clerico Gebennensis dyocesis...”), it became clear that it was possible to separate the descenders of the indiction number from the single abbreviation mark over the t in intervallis. We now believe the indiction is xii, and the year, at least in the introductory paragraph, is therefore 1359. It seems logical to assume that the introduction was written, and dated, only after most of the required documents were already at hand, and therefore, that the date of the introduction need not be earlier than all the dates of the individual items that follow.

A notice in the inventory of the ACV includes the following description of Fn 3, the rubric formerly occupied by Ab 6, before it was transferred to its present classification: “L'ancien inventaire analyse ce texte de la manière suivante: ‘1358-1361, Grosse de reconnaissances en faveur de Catherine de Savoie, femme de Guillaume, comte de Namur, seigneur de Vaud rière la châteltenie de Moudon, soit les communes de Moudon, Chavannes-sur-Moudon, Le Plan (Moudon), Lucens, Combremont-le-Petit, Prévondavaux, Bussy-sur-Moudon, Neyruz, Thierrens, Correvon, Ogens, Boulens, Rueyres, Chapelle-Vaudanne (Chapelle-sur-Moudon), Vuarrens, Martherenges, Bottens, Villars-Mendraz, Villars-Tiercelin, Peney-le-Jorat, Poliez-le-Grand, Froideville, Corcelles-le-Jorat, Montpreveyres, Servion, Vucherens, La Râpaz (Vucherens), Sarandin (Vucherens), Hermenches, Valacrest (Moudon), Champtauroz, Yvonand, Donneloye, Vuissens (Fribourg, La Broye), Forel-sur-Lucens. Notaire: Jaques Guillyent, 1 volume de 60 folios en velin’ ”. Ab 6 certainly appears to belong in the sequence of terriers for this same set of properties, including Fn 5 (1379), Fk 2 (1386), Fn 8 (1399-1406), Fn 9 (1403), Fn 27 (1459), Fn 323 (1493-1494), and Fn 330 (1541).

Multispectral analysis of this volume needs to be undertaken, as it would likely establish the dates as well as the correct reading of some badly faded names and script. The original label, reading 1340, tells us how it looked to some archivist probably in the late 19th Century; the blue pencil is surely from the 20th Century.

A few dates of previous transactions are included in the text, such as 1327. Most of these have been extracted in our analysis, below. One obvious indicator of the date range of the text itself (that is, the dates of the documents being copied into this volume), including many portions that seem to be entirely undated, is the fact that the rents on many parcels were payable to the heirs of Dominus Anthonius Cornuti de Wlliens (Vuilliens, Vulliens, etc. – many spellings were used in the 12th-15th Centuries, and almost as many spellings have been used by historians in the 20th-21st Centuries). There were at least two men called Anthonius Cornuti de Vuilliens, both at least sometimes designated miles, but from different branches of the noble family de Vuilliens. The one intended here is likely the elder of the two, son of Petrus, husband of Elyonoda, and father of Jaquetus (who died long before his sisters), Jaqueta, Marguereta, and Ysabella (the last surviving sister, prominently mentioned in the terriers Fn 5, Fk 2, Fn 8, and Fn 9). The testament of this Anthonius the elder has not been preserved and may never have existed, but other records place his death about 1343. From these sources, then, it is clear that the correct date for Ab 6 cannot be 1340, but 1358 is entirely feasible. (Further, Guillaume de Namur had married first in 1348 to Jeanne d’Avesnes. After her death in 1350, he married Catherine de Savoie, in 1352. Again, for this additional reason, 1340 is not a possible date for Ab 6.)

Charles Gilliard, the well-known historian of all things Moudon in the first decades of the 20th Century, recognized a connection between Ab 6 and the yearly accounts from the court of Savoie, of which the first covers the fiscal year 1359-1360 (Compte de la châteltenie de Moudon (1359-1360), Revue historique vaudoise 25:303-316 and 321-333, 1917). He viewed Ab 6 as the documentary counterpart of the receipts recorded in the accounts. Whether this is exactly true is uncertain and cannot be directly ascertained from published sources, since Gillard’s article is more of a summary of the material he abstracted from a copy of the original account book than an exact rendering of the copy itself, and in any case, the copy available to him was a transcript that may or may not have precisely duplicated the way the original (now in Torino, Italy) was laid out. Nevertheless, he pointed out many items in Ab 6 that illuminated the content of the accounts, and in the process explained many features found in Ab 6. Gilliard's analysis should be read along with Ab 6.

A connection between Anthonius Cornuti (the younger, in this case, but there appear to be more connections between the two families de Vuilliens and de Prez than we can presently explain) and the de Prez or de Prex family who figure in some early transactions at Chavannes is revealed in ACV PP 219/1, 14 feb 1351, described as follows: "Guillaume, fils et héritier de feu Perronet Patin, de Chillon, doit 20 livres lausannoises à dame Bovarent ? , veuve de Richard de Prex et épouse de noble Antoine Cornut, seigneur de Vulliens. La dette provient du non paiement d'une rente annuelle et perpétuelle de 3 muids de vin ou de moût, mesure de Vevey, due sur une vigne et une maison sises à Veytaux. Antoine Cornut, qui représente sa femme, obtient restitution de la vigne et de la maison par acte du 27 janvier 1351, puis il met le bien fonds en vente. L'enchère a lieu à Chillon, sur la place publique, entre le château et la maison de feu Hugonod Patin, une première fois le 6 février 1351. L'unique amateur offrant 20 livres du bien fonds grevé de rente est Perrodus de Granges, clerc, bourgeois de Vevey. Le débiteur est informé de la vente. Une semaine plus tard, le 13 février, nouvelle mise en vente au même endroit. Antoine Cornut et sa femme sont représentés par Perrod Antoine. Perrodus de Granges maintient son offre. Le 14 février 1351, à Villeneuve [la suite manque]." There are several other references to the effect that Anthonius Cornuti (the younger) was among the heirs of Richardus de Prez, castellanus de Rota, and subsequently married Richard's widow Bonarent, but there is a possibility of confusion in some of these documents with Anthonius de Vuilliens the elder. Both men lived in Moudon (at least for most of their lives), and their heirs lived there as well.

The section for Chavannes begins on fol. 25, and it is almost entirely legible. This section ends, on fol. 31, with a clear list of the heads of families (those quilibet ipsarum ibidem focum faciens): Johannodus (written Jonodus) Berset, Johannes Richardi, Perrodus Quarrier, Roletus Cular, Johannes de Tecto, Perrodus de Balma, Nycodus de Coter, Udriodus de Coter, Roletus Raspa, Nycodus Faysan, Clemens de Tecto, Aubertus Malla, Girardus de Botens, Johannodus Ferrier, Aymonetus Cosenderii ? , Nycodus Pachy, Perrodus Quarrier, Aubertus Herba, Johannodus Murisat, Nycodus Jonnetez ? , Coanerius Magnin, Johannodus Neyrot, et Nicodus ? dou Bugnyon, omnes de Chavanes. In addition, all of these plus Mermetus Regis and Francesia de Curia owed "pro marescaleia". These together, in turn, plus Perrodus Mottet, Johannetus filius Girodi, Aubertus his brother, Anthonius filius Jaqueti de Curia, Mermetus filius Johannetus de Curia, Johanneta filia Perrodi Rossier de Curia, owed additional rents. Thus, Chavannes had 23 hearths at the time, with several other tenants evidently living nearby. In some cases, more than one family was probably included in the same household, and we expect to spot this situation when we discover brothers or other relatives assessed for a portion of a house they shared with someone who is on this list. There may also be some hints about origins hiding in the arithmetic of various shared parcels and shared rents, such as several mentions of rents payable by the heirs of Nycodus and Perrodus de Tecto.

It remains to be seen whether enough information survives to connect the reconnaissants from Chavannes in Ab 6 with those in Fn 27, a century later. For the Dutoit family, Fn 27 shows that only the descendants of Nycodus de Tecto, through his sons Jacobus and Roletus, still held property at Chavannes that was part of the present fief. In Ab 6, there are several of them:

Roletus Cular, son of Ansermetus de Tecto; Perrodus filius Coanerii de Tecto; Johannes or Johannodus filius Jaqueti de Tecto; and Clemens filius Williermi de Tecto. Also, a different Perrodus de Tecto had been murdered by Johannes Morel, survived by his daughters Johanneta and Perrusseta.

The script is somewhat ambiguous concerning names. Similar names seem to be treated as interchangeable, such as Perretus and Perrodus. The name that should probably be Johannodus is consistently spelled Jonodus. The endings that may be -rʃ and -tʃ are ambiguous in themselves, as the terminal abbreviation sign could represent almost anything, but these two endings may actually be used interchangeably in the manuscript, in such possible names as Mermerius and Mermetus, Johannetus and Johannerius, etc., that we have not always been able to distinguish reliably from internal evidence – we generally interpret the root ending in these cases as -etus, rather than -erius, absent a clear reading to the contrary, but with the caveat that either might have been intended. The script seems too vague to be sure in every case.

(Note that there is no mention of any cense payable to the heirs of Anthonius Cornuti de Vuilliens, the censes are payable entirely to the house of Savoie unless the text specifies otherwise. Does the donation to the clergy of Moudon still exist ? This donation is mentioned twice in Ab 6, the other instance is on fol. 57v, where other properties that came from Lausenneta or Losenneta are discussed. The Béguines were a movement of lay women who functioned as an unofficial pious and charitable order. How many there were in Moudon at this period is unknown, but Losenetta was living within sight of the church of Notre Dame in Moudon, on the ridge where the most notable families lived, including the de Vuilliens. One notice concerning a different bequest by Losenneta is found in the AC Moudon, M 58, 180, 08 mar 1340, “Jordan Borsat, de Moudon, prêtre, lègue à la confrérie du Saint-Esprit du Bourg, pour lui et Losenete, béguine, une cense d'un bichet de froment que lui doit Hugonet Brestalat, de Mézery (Mezières ?), mari de la fille de I Champagny”, a bit over a year before the transaction with Louis II de Savoie, which, as far as we know, has been lost. However, there are likely to be addition mentions of Losenneta in the terriers concerning the rights of the churchs, clergy, hospitals, and confratrie of Moudon.)

At that time, 1 livre = 20 sols = 240 deniers = 480 oboles, and at that time, also, the circulating currency was almost exclusively the denier. From the text, it appears the total price, i.e., the principal received by Louis II de Savoie, was equivalent to 99,200 deniers. If we assume that the stated censes, equivalent to 7710.5 deniers in cash and 4 coupes of grain, were to be paid separately, the total value of the censes must be adjusted to include the value of the 4 coupes, at that time in the range of 50-60 deniers per coupe. We observed in many transactions of the period that the rate of simple interest was usually a whole number or simple fraction, often 5%, 7.5%, or occasionally even 10%. Seeing that the value of the grain was quite small in comparison with the cash cense, we tried several possible interest rates and derived the monetary value that must have been assigned to the cense of grain. The solution appears to be that the loan of 99,200 deniers was financed at 8% simple interest, to be paid to Anthonius de Vuilliens in the form of 7710.5 deniers plus 4 coupes of grain valued at 225.5 deniers. (We have not yet been able to identify this cense of grain in Ab 6.) In turn, this tells us that the transaction being described involved a loan of a slightly over 401 livres, plus the principal of around 13 livres associated with the grain. If one or the other of these values were expressed in “old” instead of “new” currency (the change dates from about the beginning of the 14th Century, and the conversion was evidently about 12 old to 15 new deniers – for some reason, the censes expressed in “old” currency reported in the terriers even generations later still had not been converted to “new” currency, in effect highlighting censes that must have originated before the introduction of the “new” currency), the deviation from the usual round numbers for this sort of transaction might be explained. We conclude that the censes paid for nearly the next two centuries to the heirs of Anthonius de Vuilliens the elder (or was it Anthonius the younger in this instance ?) or to the later holders of the same debt arose from a loan of 400 livres at 8% simple interest, plus the refinancing of a previous debt to the late Guiliermus de Sottens for around 13 livres. Of the debt owed to Guiliermus de Sottens, we discovered a history of the village of Sottens by Maxime Reymond, then Archivist d’Etat de Vaud, published in the Bulletin Technique, published by the Administration des Télégraphes et des Téléphones suisses, 13(1):31-34, January, 1935, under the title “Renseignements historiques sue le village de Sottens, où se trouve le poste émetteur national de radio-diffusion pour la Suisse Romande”. Of particular relevance, we note several passages: “Les seigneurs de Sotens devinrent probablement les vassaux des comtes de Savoie lorsque ceux-ci eurent occupé en 1207 Moudon, où ces chevaliers avaient une maison, sur la Place du Château, que leurs descendants vendirent en 1342 à Louis II de Savoie, baron de Vaud. C’est à ce moment que disparaît la famille des seigneurs de Sotens. Elle paraît avoir été ruinée. A la fin du XIII^e siècle déjà, Louis de Savoie acquit à Sotens la haute et basse juridiction, avec le droit de chevauchée (aide militaire), les usages, et les revenus. Le 21 mai 1298, il en fit cession au vidomne Jean de Moudon se réservant, avec la haute juridiction, les deux tiers des émoluments de justice (clames) et les amendes.” “Enfin, de 1320 à 1342, la famille de Sotens n’est plus représentée que par Guillaume de Sotens, fils du donzel Aymon, et par sa mère Isabelle, qui vendent, parcelle par parcelle, ce qu’ils possédaient, à Jean de Vulliens, chevalier, et surtout à son fils Antoine de Vulliens, dit Cornut, aussi chevalier ; notamment en 1325 la dîme et le terrage du lieu, en 1327 les corvées. Louis II de Savoie approuva le 24 mars 1328 toutes les acquisitions d’Antoine Cornut à Sotens, faites ou à faire. Par héritage, les nobles de Blonay acquièrent au début du XV^e siècle cette dîme et d’autres biens qui passèrent au siècle suivant aux Glane et aux Loys.” (Note that this is apparently Anthonius the younger.) Also cited, a sale of rents by Guillaume de Sotens in 1323, without further specifics apart from the fact that several local families are mentioned : Braillard, Curetaz, Poncet, and Monney. Other families and a number of topnyms, along with the church at Sottens, were mentioned in a document from 1312, not otherwise specified. Can these sources be identified? ACV P Loys 2287, die Lune post Annonciacionem 1325, “Vendition du diesme et terrage de Sottens faicte par Noble Wllierme, fils d'Aymon de Sottens, à Noble Anthoyne, fils de Jean de Wllyens pour 50 florins a lod terrage et dixsme contre du fief d'illustre prince Louys de Savoie, comte de Vaud. Signé Perrod Servat de Burgo.” P Loys 609, January, 1339 (probably 1340 by today's calendar), “Le donzel Guillaume de Sottens vend au noble chevalier Antoine Cornu, de Vulliens, un cens annuel de 3 bichets de moitié froment, mesure de Moudon, que lui doivent Jean Tintureir, d'Oulens, et ses frères, Girold, Nicolas, Aubert et Henriod, sur trois quarts d'un champ situé en territoire de Bussy, en la Chavana, à côté du chemin public. Prix: 40 sous lausannois. Lesdits Teintureir reconnaissent devoir ce cens audit Antoine Cornu. Il est rappelé que ce cens est mouvant du fief de Louis de Savoie, seigneur de Vaud. Cette vente est faite du consentement d'Isabelle, soeur dudit Guillaume de Sottens, veuve du donzel Jean Allamant, de Mézières, de leur fils Richard. Acte reçu et levé par Johannod Arma, clerc, de Moudon, juré du bailliage de Vaud.” It makes sense that so many documents are found in the papers of the de Loys family, who later held some of the fiefs the de Vuilliens family. The titles concerning these fiefs had been passed from family to family over a period of centuries. The document referenced by the archivist Reymond under the date of 24 mar 1328 is Loys 2275, dated in the online inventory of the ACV as 19 mar 1327, but the true source of the document referenced here in Ab 6 could easily be in a set of copies of documents not indexed individually, such as the copies or extracts from the archives the house of Savoie, in Torino, Italy, or some similar compilation. From the available information, it is clear that it was Anthonius the younger, son of Johannes de Vuilliens, who was the one acquiring assets at Sottens, and not the other Anthonius the elder, son of Petrus – quite contrary to what we expected, and thus even more of a mystery. The nature of the document, whatever its source, is clearly established in the Archivio di Stato di Torino, Sezioni riunite, camerale Savoia, inv. 70, f. 109, Moudon, mazzo 1, rouleaux 1-6, 1359-1367, of which one item, listing the accounts for 1358 for the châteltenie de Moudon, notes a debt of 32 livres, 2 sols, and 6 deniers payable to Anthonius Cornu de Vulliens. In other words, the interest on the original debt was still being paid. It remains to be established if the surviving accounts still show the same debt in later years, or if it is phrased differently to account for later successions and changes.)

This reconnaissance continues with additional items, unfortunately spoiled by significant losses of ink in about 5 consecutive lines at the top of fol. 6, but at the end mentioning a document, evidently a sale, possibly not recorded at the time, but copied and “confected” in “public form” by Girardus Choupar de Melduno clericus juratus ballivie Waudi, with Dominus Franciscus de Serrata dudum ballivi Waudi, 20 oct 1348, the original apparently unavailable propter absenciam Petri fratris sui existentis in Pruciis, and the original sale described in the copy (and that original is to be deposited with the secretariat of the church of Lausanne) was dated 19 apr 1348 (anno supra proxime dicto). This copy was exhibited to the commissaire for the preparation of this terrier by Amedeus, son of ..., but the rest is illegible.

6 Perrodus de Castella, only a single item, which seems strange for such an important and apparently wealthy individual, but it is possible the many properties granted to him in the past no longer were subject to the house of Savoie, domum suam sitam in Burgo juxta bastimentem et casale Perrodi de Porta ex altera, ad vi denarios veteres redditus domino.

54 Ermenges (=Hermenches. There are several mentions of a de Granges family here, but there is nothing so far to indicate that they are the same family found in the early 15th Century near Payerne. There are also some items in the previous sections that concern Hermenches, see above fols. 3 and 19.)

54 Wlliermus Mistralis de Ermenges nomine dotis Clemencie eius uxoris filie Perrodi Mistralis de Ermenges quondam, mistraliam dicti loci pro qua percipit clamam sex denarios (list of fees the mistrale will collect from each clamum, barra, seysina, and banno, and the usages that do and do not apply to him, very similar to the list in the next surviving terrier, Fn 5, fol. 26v, from 1379, for Jaquetus Mistralis alias de Reuro, presumably a brother, cousin, or brother-in-law of Wlliermus)...

Item, tenet a domino i ochiam sitam ou Brollet juxta terram Nycole Mallarda et terram Johanneti (clear, not Johannerii) Mistralis ex altera, pro quibus mistralia, ochia, ac furno (the communal oven is not mentioned above, it is in the separate reconnaissance of Jaquetus, as explained in what follows) et ochia infra recognitis per Jaquetum filium Johannerii (the script is not as precise as we could wish, but the name appears to be written Joherj, not Joheti, directly above it on the page) de Reuro debentur domino xxiiii soldios novorum Lausannenses census, de quibus idem Mistralis debet solvere medietatem et dictus Jaquetus aliam medietatem, prout ipse Jaquetus presens in presenti recognicione recognovit, quos idem viginti quatuor solidos nunc solvunt heredibus Domini Anthonii Cornuti. (In other words, Wlliermus and Jaquetus together and jointly owe 24 sols to the heirs of Anthonius Cornuti. The amount had earlier been a cense of 44 sols, but, as described in the next paragraphe, it was reduced by a “remission” issued by Ysabella de Cabilone, today usually known as Isabelle de Chalon, wife of Louis II de Savoie, and Katherina de Sabaudia, their daughter. The use of the term remission could carry the implication that an outstanding debt was being reduced, whether as a result of repayment of part of the principal, goodwill, or for some other reason, and that scenario in turn might suggest that an earlier holder of the mistralium had purchased the office for 44 livres at 5% simple interest, as seems to have been the usual practice. For the separate reconnaissance of Jaquetus de Reuro, holder of the other half of this fief, see below, fol. 54v.)

Et est sciendum quod pro dictis furno, mistralia, et duabus ochiis debebantur et solvebantur domini ante morta (that is, prior to the death of Louis II de Savoie, 1349) quadraginta quatuor solidos, de quibus sibi fuerunt remisse perpetue viginti solidos per Dominas Ysabellam de Cabilone et Katerinam de Sabaudia dominas Waudi per licteram ipsarum de cescione ? (script is quite ambiguous, but could be read as $\overline{\text{cescio}}$) data 04 apr 1351 (year written $\text{m}^{\circ} \text{ccc}^{\circ} \text{lp}^{\circ}$) quam ostendit Amedeus Cornuti et ipsam sibi retinuit.

54 Idem Wllierumus, various individual parcels, whose descriptions include the following names of tenants of adjoining properties : Aubertus Ruvinel, Stephanus Convers ? , Jaquetus de Reuro, Jaquemeus Meneti, dicta Millarda, Jaquetus Magnini, Menetus Morel (in other reconnaissances also called Moret), Cristininodus de Reuroz and Jaquetus “de eodem” (in other words, Cristinodus and Jaquetus de Reuro, with the implication that Reuro refers to a place), Jaquetus Convers ? , dicti Langins, Menetus Episcopus, Meynetus Wyton ? , Perrodus Chartrier, the total cense of 1 quarteron messeli, $\frac{1}{2}$ quarteron avene, and 9 deniers, all payable to the sovereign, plus 7 sols, 2 deniers, 3 poyse census [quos] “nunc solvit heredibus Domini Anthonii Cornuti”.

54v Jaquetus filius Johannerii de Reuro juratus, est homo liber domini, et tenet de eo furum de Ermenges cum ochia retro, sitam juxta pratum suum, et ochiam Cristinodi de Reuroz ex altera, many additional parcels, with almost all of the same names of adjacent tenants, and at the end, the cense due is the same as in the preceding reconnaissance, 1 quarteron messeli, $\frac{1}{2}$ quarteron avene, and 9 deniers, all payable to the sovereign, plus 7 sols, 2 deniers, 3 poyse census [quos] “nunc solvit heredibus Domini Anthonii Cornuti”. (Evidently Wlliermus and Jaquetus, whatever their exact relationship, each inherited a half interest in the mistralium and other properties.)

54v Johannetus filius Menerii de Reuro, others mentioned as adjacent tenants include the children of Aubertus de Reuro, children of Thomas de Granges, children of Perretus lo Gueis (possibly should be read as l’Ogueis ?), a parcel es Tierdos ? containing 1 falcata pro indiviso cum Cristinodo de Reuro, the children of Langin, as well as many of the other names mentioned in the preceding items.

54v Cristinodus (written out in full) filius Cristini de Reuro, in Campo de Planches iii posas terre juxta terram Johanneti nepotis sui..., a parcel that should be identifiable in a reconnaissance by someone else in this section – but it is not mentioned in the reconnaissance for Johannetus filius Menerii de Reuro, above. Various other parcels, including the other half of the one es Tierdos mentioned in the preceding reconnaissance, but this time “pro indiviso cum dictis nepotibus suis” – perhaps actually a different parcel ?

55 Meynetus Bergier de Ermenges, mention heirs of Albertus de Reuro,

55 Jaquetus filius Stephani de Granges minor relatu Jaquete matris sue

55 Jaquetus filius Mermete Conversa ? , mention his brother Stephanus. A separate part of this reconnaissance, Item, tenet a domino de abbergo Murisete relicte Wlliermi filii Andree, mentions his brothers Aubertus and Stephanus. Item, de abbergo Udrici Rosset, begins with 1 pose ou Sacret juxta terram liberorum Auberti de Reuroz et Jaqueti filii Johannis de Reuro. Also, de abbergo liberorum Auberti de Reuro que quondam fuerunt Stehani Convers in Cruce, 2 poses. Also, an abbergo Stephani alumpni Menerii Mistralis, en la Caceta.

55v Johannetus Langin de Ermenges et Stephanus filius Udriodi eius fratris minor et absens relatu dicti Johanneti, mention of property en Faoz, adjacent to property of the heirs of la Metralessa, also mention of heirs of Petrus de Reuro,

56 Jaquetus filius Stephani Magnin, de bonis Jonodi Curtot quondam

56 Jaquetus Gillaber, Johannes filius Stephani de la Raspaz nomine dotis Mermete uxoris ipsius Johannis filie quondam Roleti Pitet de Ermenges, et Cecellia filia Wlliermi Pitet uxor Peroneti ? de Sorandens. One parcel, line 7, Item, in Monte ii posas terre jxuta terram Meyneti Fujalla ? (likely an attempt at Fonjalla, attested in later records here) et terram de Rocenges ex altera. Later, divided between lines 13 and 14, the name Convers appears, written out in full.

56v Menetus filius Johannis de Meyseres

56v Meynetus Moret filius Mariete Moreta, mention lease by Johannes de Blonay, ballif de Vaud, evidently to this Meynetus, of property that had come from Rometa relicta Cristini filii Auberti, but no family name is given, by way of a transaction dated 15 may 1351 (m^o ccc^o lp^o). Also, at the bottom of fol. 56v, Item, tenet a domino de abbergo Meneto et Perrodi de Reuro nomine dotis Nycole uxoris sue sibi traditis in solucionem pro sexaginta solidis, en la Lembeta, i falcata prati pro indiviso cum illis de Reuro. Perhaps Meynetus had married Nycola, daughter of Perrodus de Reuro, and they applied her dowry to lease certain properties which would remain as her inheritance ?

57 Stephanus filius Perrodi ? (name obscured by a fold in the parchment, but confirmed as father of Stephanus later in the text) Convers

57v Perrodus filius Auberti de Reuro, another mention of Meynerius Fujalla (written fuíalla). Toward the end, but obscured by several folds in the vellum,

Item, in Prato dou Russel ii falcatas et dimidiam prati juxta terram Johanneti de Reuro et affrontatur pascuis ville ad xxi denarios novorum census domino et clero Melduni ii solidos iii denarios in exoneracionem septem solidorum et [octo] denariorum novorum olim assignatos per inclite recordacionis Domini Ludovici de Sabaudia dudum dominum Waudi Losennete de Bevouges begnine de Melduno racione supra dicta in recognicione Jaqueti Merminodi. (This is explained, for the most part, on fol. 3, above, the reconnaissance of this Jaquetus, where Lausanneta sold several properties in Moudon and Hermenches to Ludovicus de Sabaudia in 1342, in return for which, she was to collect the cense from the tenants. On reflection, since Louis II de Savoie would have chosen the best properties for his purposes, and those properties were apparently owned directly by Losenneta when he made this purchase, this transaction, and especially its date, seems not to have any bearing on the question of when Anthonius Cornuti acquired his title to portions of the cense on many properties in the area around Moudon.)

57v Johannes Brener gener Perreti de Granges nomine dotis Perrete uxoris sue filie dicti ? Perreti

57v Aubertus filius Mermete Conversa ? , mention of his brother Jaquetus.

57v Humbertus filius Mermerii Mugnerii

57v Meynetus filius quondam Johannodi Chevallier de Ermenges habitator de Vaillar Mendraz

58 Nycola de Ermenges relictæ Meynerii Fuialla ? (=Fujalla, Fonjalla), mention of property held by Vouterius de Reuro, as well as a parcel that is divided between her and Cristinodus de Reuro and his partners.

58 Perreta filia Perreti Oguey de Ermenges

58 Roletus filius quondam Johannis Mistralis de Ermenges, mention heirs of Menerius Fonjalla (written foniälla, very clear)

58 Aubertus filius Meynerii Vouter

58v List of heads of family at Ermenges : Jaquetus Gillaberti, Peronetus de Sarendens, Jaquetus Magnin, Johannis Langini ? , Meynetus Moreti, Jaquetus Convers ? , Jaquetus de Granges, Stephanus dou Russel, Jaquetus de eodem, Johannes Brenneris ? , Johannetus Monier ? , Meynetus ...tier, Cristinodus de Reuro et Jaquetus de Reuro, omnis de Ermenges, reference to a schedule of accounts compiled by Dominus Johannes de Blonay dudum Ballivi Waudi de anno domini 1357 (m^o ccc^o lvii^o), and notations indicating a few residents claim to be exempt from some of the usagia.
