The flyleaves show old designations for this volume: No. 388, No. 7, No. 25. The first folio is blank (perhaps an elaborate title page was contemplated), followed on fol. 2 by an introduction, which states that this volume was begun by Johannes Challeti de Cossonay on Tuesday, 02 mar 1456 Style of the Nativity. However, the volume is more complex than the title and the inventory of the ACV would suggest.

The script is clear and fairly neat, involving several different scribes. Where the script would otherwise be ambiguous because of long series of minims, as in the word endominium, there are often strokes over the i's. There are frequent but very brief marginal notations indicating later tenants (both in Latin and some much later, in French, thus extending at least to the 18th Century), references to other volumes ("L 215v, D 17v") that have not been identified, and, apparently references to a cadastral plan ("Pl. 68"). One of the volumes referenced this way can probably be identified: "En Bayé, Ext. Louys Chalet A, fol. 5v".

Many of the properties were houses in Aubonne, with sufficient detail to support a reconstruction of the plan of much of the city. As the lieudits for the houses are generally noted in the margin (e.g., En la Rue de l'hospital), finding the reconnaissances for adjacent houses is usually not too difficult, provided they were part of the same fief.

At fol. 173, a new set of reconnaissances begins, for the same Nobilis Johannes de Menthone, but apparently now in his own name alone, presumably indicating that his wife Margareta had died, and that he had succeeded to her properties, this set begun 09 jan 1459, and again starting with an endominium. This section is again the work of the same commissaire, Johannes Challeti de Cossonay.

(Fol. 1 and 1v are blank.)
